Marshmallow Travels

Travel blog

Hello, my name is Vanja Vodenik and I am travel blogger behind marshmallowtravels.com.

I am traveler by heart, journalist by profession, currently working in PR and living in Slovenia. I have been travelling for almost 20 years and visited 38 countries. My passions are writing, exploring new countries and re-exploring places I already visited. I am collecting countries, airports and stamps in my passport. I started writing my first travel journal in 1998 when I visited Sri Lanka and Maldives. Since November 2016 Marshmallow Travels have become my new travel diary where I share my travel guides, tips, stories and travel itineraries.

Thank you for being interested in Marshmallow Travels!

MARSHMALLOW TRAVELS

Travel blog of Slovenian 20-something traveller, where you can find travel guides and stories from all over the world, with special emphasis on off-the-beaten-path destinations. Vanja is a solo female traveller, however, travels also with friends and family.

Next up: South Africa and Swaziland.

Marshmallow Travels' readers are mainly from Slovenia, USA and other European countries, aged 18 to 34, speaking English and Slovenian.

Most popular blog posts this month:

How to cross the street in Cairo and which iconic sites you have to see

Travel itinerary: a week around the (extended) French and Spanish Basque country
Moscow as I know it

Who have I collaborated with so far!

24 h brez skrbi

Assistance CORIS d.o.o. is an assistance company, which offers urgent medical help/assistance services to our customers while they are abroad. We started our collaboration with Miss Vanja based on her interesting stories written on the blog Marshmallow Travels. We found her stories interesting especially because they are written through the prism of a young traveller, which encounters different unpleasant situations, related to medical events on the journey. Our collaboration is very professional and correct, that's why we are looking forward to new ideas and different proposals for cooperation from both sides.
