About Vanja & Marshmallow Travels!

Hello, my name is Vanja Vodenik and I am travel blogger behind marshmallowtravels.com.

I am traveler by heart, journalist by profession, currently working in PR and living in Slovenia. I have been travelling for almost 20 years and visited 45+ countries. My passions are writing, exploring new countries and re-exploring places I already visited. I am collecting countries, airports and stamps in my passport. I started writing my first travel journal in 1998 when I visited Sri Lanka and Maldives. Since November 2016 Marshmallow Travels have become my new travel diary where I share my travel guides, tips, stories and travel itineraries.

MARSHMALLOW TRAVELS

"We started our collaboration with Miss Vanja based on her interesting stories written on the blog Marshmallow Travels. We found her stories interesting especially because they are written through the prism of a young traveller, which encounters different unpleasant situations, related to medical events on the journey. Our collaboration is very professional and correct, that's why we are looking forward to new ideas and different proposals for cooperation from both sides."

"Working with Vanja was really easy and smooth from the first emails exchange to the content delivery. She understood our brand identity and did a really good job with our Instagram take over. She is really professional and I would definitely recommend any brand to work with her. Thanks Vanja!"

Zoé Branche, Marketing Manager Baz Bus

"Getting to know Vanja & Klemen was great! They took the tour with us and after we saw the work they did in their social media and we can't be more thankful. They were one of our best costumers so don't doubt in working with them!"
